

Directory of Technical Assistance Service Providers and Research and Development Centers

Directory of Technical Assistance Service Providers and Research and Development Centers

Funded by the U.S. Department of Education

The Directory is a compilation of technical assistance service providers and research and development centers funded by the U.S. Department of Education. It is intended to be a comprehensive, easily accessible print guide that users can keep at their fingertips for contact information. The Directory is categorized in two sections: Section 1—Technical Assistance Service Providers, and Section 2—Research and Development Centers. The sections are separated by a divider page. The Directory was compiled by the Great Lakes East and Great Lakes West Comprehensive Assistance Centers at the request of the U.S. Department of Education.

The information included in this Directory is current as of March 2007. There will be an online version of the Directory for downloading on the Great Lakes East website (www.learningpt.org/greatlakeseast/) and Great Lakes West website (www.learningpt.org/greatlakeswest/). Any updates as a result of ongoing refunding processes or new grants will be reflected in the online version of the Directory in a PDF format. Questions or updates of the contact information in the Directory may be directed to the Great Lakes East or Great Lakes West directors.

The Directory is a complimentary part of the Matrix database, undertaken by the Federal Resource Center for Special Education. The Matrix allows users to view the actual work happening in their states and jurisdictions across the country and to map technical assistance and dissemination activities across the states. It is available online (www.rrfnetwork.org/component/option,com_matrix/Itemid,285/). This dynamic Web-based application is intended to serve as one location of the actual work activities that the federally funded centers are providing to their clients. The Directory will be posted on the Matrix website as a reference tool as well.

Comprehensive Centers

Regional Comprehensive Centers

Sixteen regional comprehensive centers provide frontline technical assistance to states within their regions to help them implement No Child Left Behind (NCLB) and other related federal school improvement programs and help increase SEA capacity to help districts and schools meet their student achievement goals. The goal of the Comprehensive Center program is to help low-performing schools and districts close achievement gaps and meet the goals of the NCLB Act.

Disability and Business Technical Assistance Centers

Disability and Business Technical Assistance Centers provide technical assistance and training to state and local governments and private businesses regarding the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) to facilitate compliance with the ADA and conduct disability and rehabilitation research, and research development activities. They provide information, referrals, training, and technical assistance to employers, people with disabilities, and other entities with responsibilities under the ADA. Activities include education, technical support, public awareness, local capacity building, program evaluation research, outreach, coordination, and materials dissemination.

Equity Assistance Centers

There are 10 regional equity assistance centers (EACs) funded by the U.S. Department of Education under Title IV of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. They provide technical assistance and training by request to public schools and state education agencies (SEAs) in the areas of race, gender, and national origin. The EACs' mission is to assist States, school districts, and other education stakeholders (parents, educators, community members) to ensure that all students benefit from equal educational opportunities and achieve high levels of academic excellence. The EACs provide a variety of capacity-building services, such as technical assistance, needs assessment, and professional development to public school districts (including charter schools and magnet schools). EACs' technical assistance is in areas, such as parental options, safe schools and school climate, bullying and teasing, prejudice reduction, English language learners, and sexual and ethnic harassment.

Language Resource Centers

The language resource centers serve as resources for improving the nation's capacity for teaching and learning foreign languages through teacher training, research, materials development, and dissemination projects. The dissemination efforts include research and dissemination of new and improved teaching methods, including educational technology; development and dissemination of new teaching materials; development, application, and dissemination of performance testing; training of teachers in the administration and interpretation of performance tests, the use of effective teaching strategies, and the use of new technologies; significant focus on the needs of those who are teaching and learning the less commonly taught languages; development and dissemination of materials designed to serve as a resource for foreign language teachers at the elementary and secondary school levels; and operation of intensive summer language institutes.

Special Education Technical Assistance and Dissemination Network

This network provides technical assistance and disseminates information that supports states and local entities in building capacity to improve early intervention, education, transitional services, and results for children with disabilities and their families.

I. Regional Resource and Federal Centers Network

The Regional Resource and Federal Centers (RRFC) Network is made up of the six regional resource centers (RRCs) for special education and the Federal Resource Center (FRC). The six RRCs and the FRC assist state education agencies in the systemic improvement of education programs, practices, and policies that affect children and youth with disabilities. The FRC works closely with the Office of Special Education Programs and the Technical Assistance and Dissemination Network to coordinate special education technical assistance efforts across regions and topical areas.
